Nutritional Counseling - 7th Edition

Lesson 12 Test Questions

Question 1
A person's confidence in his or her ability to accomplish a behaviour change may be more important than actual skill.
A. True
B. False

Question 2
Which behaviour change theory incorporates a person's relationship with social groups and the environment?

A. Health belief model
B. Transtheoretical model
C. Theory of planned behaviour
D. Social cognitive theory
E. All of the above

Question 3
In the Health Belief Model, physical symptoms, a media report, or advice of a physician can all be cues to action.
A. True
B. False

Question 4
Which Health Belief Construct is the perception that heart disease can negatively affect a person's financial status?
A. Cue to Action
B. Perceived Susceptibility
C. Perceived Severity
D. Perceived Barrier

Question 5
In the Transtheoretical Model, people can be stuck in which stage for years, waiting for the "magic moment"?
A. Precontemplation
B. Contemplation
C. Preparation
D. Action
E. Maintenance

Question 6
Self-efficacy tends to increase for individuals between the precontemplation and contemplation stages.
A. True
B. False

Question 7
A_____ is based on the law of effect, which states that behaviours can be changed by their positive or negative effect.
A. Modelling
B. Classical conditioning
C. Operant conditioning
D. Systematic densensitization

Question 8
Social modelling, verbal persuasion, and improving physical and emotional states are intervention strategies for which Social Cognitive Theory concept?
A. Behavioural capacity
B. Self-efficacy
C. Observational learning
D. Facilitation

Question 9
Collaboration, evocation, and autonomy are the three components of _____.
A. solution-focused therapy
B. behavioural therapy
C. cognitive therapy
D. motivational interviewing.

Question 10
When clients express _____, the balance of indecision begins to shift toward taking action.
A. ambivalence
B. need for change
C. resistance
D. B and C