Nutritional Counseling 7th Edition

Lesson 16 Test Questions

Question 1
Checking off boxes, using art, and the gradual emptying of a bowl are all alternatives to which of the following?
A. Journaling
B. Countering
C. Goal-setting
D. Meal-planning

Question 2
In the case of decreasing the occurrence of a detrimental food stimulus, the objective in _____ is to alter the triggering stimulus or reduce exposure to it.
A. countering
B. contracting
C. cue management
D. goal setting

Question 3
Which of the following is a strategy to control environmental cues?
A. Placing pennies in a jar each time a particular behaviour is accomplished
B. Placing foods that should be encouraged in a highly visible spot
C. Finding an activity to substitute for eating
D. All of the above

Question 4
What are the ABCs of behaviour?
A. Action, Behaviour, Cues
B. Ambivalence, Behaviour, Consequence
C. Antecedent, Belief, Cues
D. Antecedent, Behaviour, Consequence

Question 5
Rewards are often used in conjunction with _____.
A. problem-solving
B. modeling
C. contracting
D. countering

Question 6
Studies of patient education have shown that clients typically forget half the information presented to them within _____.
A. five minutes
B. fifteen minutes
C. half an hour
D. an hour

Question 7
It's recommended that counsellors use supportive language when providing educational instructions to a client. Supportive language usually means staying away from the word _____.
A. diet
B. you
C. me
D. no

Question 8
In the Nutrition Care Process, the American Dietetic Association uses the term _____ to describe the degree to which a client has followed a prescribed regimen.
A. adherence
B. compliance
C. observance
D. obedience

Question 9
Thinking patterns have been categorized as
A. good thinking and bad thinking.
B. opportunity thinking and reward thinking.
C. observational thinking and obstacle thinking.
D. opportunity thinking and obstacle thinking.

Question 10
Some of the most frequently named barriers to behavior change can be addressed by _____.
A. willpower
B. an increase in knowledge
C. risk taking
D. money